BUILDING BRIDGES FOR GENERATIONS TO COME

God Sightings

For over a hundred years, God has used White Mountain Camps as a place where, as Rev. Joel Wright said; "Jesus will be the center of attraction, and those who come here will have to make an extra effort and for no other purpose than to worship Him in spirit and in truth."

White Mountain Camps, also known as, Rumney Bible Conference, has been a place of spiritual inspiration for many generations. At times this place has been a haven for those in need. At other times it has been a place where seekers came to be enlightened and inspired as they sought to come closer to the Lord. It remains such a place today as young and old come to White Mountain Camps to hold retreats and spiritual conferences and to just experience God's great outdoors in New Hampshire. People come here to camp, to work (both as volunteers and as paid staff), and to live. God has used Rumney to be a bridge across many generations. There are so many stories about how God has worked and continues to work but here are just three.

A Servants Camp volunteer was working on the chimney in the red cabin on Pine Ridge when a gentleman came walking by and looked at what was being done. "You know," the gentleman remarked; "I was saved in this cabin 50 years ago." That took place ten years ago, and both are still today meeting Jesus here at White Mountain Camps.

During another Servants Camp, also up on Pine Ridge, a woman was working to repaint the door sills on newly renovated cabins. All the rest of the painting was done, and she had about half of a soda can full of paint to finish her task. There was no more paint, and she didn't think she had enough, but she bowed her head and said a brief prayer. That night as she recounted her story, she said it was her "God sighting for the day." Not only was she able to finish the job, but she had almost as much paint left as when she started.

Finally, during one of our hosted camps, there was a young man about 12 years old who had never been able to breath out of the left side of his nose. In fact, he was scheduled to have an operation in several weeks to repair his deviated septum. During the week, he felt drawn closer to the Lord. At the week's end there was baptisms scheduled in the pool on the Ridge. He requested to be baptized. He said that as he came up out of the water, he was able to breath for the first time in his life from his left nostril. We understand the surgery was canceled.

There are many other stories and some of you can undoubtedly tell your own story where you have met God on these hollowed grounds.

God has watched over and protected us through the years, but He works through us to call for your help. Won't you please consider contributing to our fund to replacing roofs on our aging buildings so they will be available for years and generations to come?
